EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Mexican Border Troubles.

NEW ORLEANS, July 7.—A Brownsville special says the collector of customs has received information that 19 Mexicans crossed four hundred cattle into Mexico 19 miles below Rio Grande City. Cortinas, Judge Martinez, and other prisoners, have been sent to Bagdad to be placed on the gunboat Juarez for Vera Cruz.

Investing Business of the Central Pacific.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Commercial Advertiser, commenting on the Central Pacific, boasts of increasing business, and says the public on the Pacific coast and buyers of sound investment stocks in this quarter don't take hold of the stock of the road at 94@95 per cent, though professing to pay six per cent gold interest. The reasons may probably be found in the unsettled relations of the road with the government and want of faith in Pacific coast managers.

Money and Stocks.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Gold closed at 103¾@103½; money easy at 1½@2; governments dull and lower; sixes, 1881, and 10-40's, Pacific, 4½; Panama, 120; Quicksilver, 34; W. U., 83½; W. F. & Co., 76; New York Central, 102¾; Erie, 15; Central bonds, 102¾.

Specie Drift.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Specie shipments to Europe to-day $650,000 gold.

Failures.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 7.—The suspension is announced of Pyle, Frost & Co., wholesale grocers and dealers in liquors; liabilities, between $150,000 and $200,000; and of W. H. Bradley & Co., carriage manufacturers; liabilities, $225,000.

THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

The Tilton-Price Conspiracy—Beecher Denounces the Whole Story.

NEW YORK, July 7.—At the further examination to-day of Joseph Loeder, charged with perjury and subornation in the Tilton-Beecher case, Beecher was called as a witness at the request of the district attorney. He looked over the affidavits of Loeder, and was asked if any of the statements in that one were true. He replied, "There is both, for that is true there is." Loeder was then asked to read the affidavit sworn to by Price in connection with Loeder. (He testified there was not a word of truth in the allegations.) Judge Martinez then took the cross-examination. Beecher testified he was unguarded in his intercourse with any one, and certainly not with any lady; his associations with Mrs. Tilton were those of a gentleman. His intercourse with Mrs. Tilton was with friends with a kiss. He had sometimes kissed Mrs. Tilton when he had been away a long time. He kissed Tilton's family all around, but didn't do so with Mrs. Tilton. He was at Tilton's dwelling only a few days. Mrs. Tilton sometimes met him at the door in company with her husband, but didn't remember that she ever opened the door for him. His visits to Tilton's house lasted five minutes—sometimes an hour, sometimes an hour and a half. This was about the usual length of time. He usually spent his visits in conversation. He had prayed with her, but only when he felt sure Tilton was not present. Most of this by his usual custom with his parishioners. He thought very lately there was a sofa in Mr. Tilton's, and he might have sat upon it with Mrs. Tilton's grandfather, and he felt towards her like her father.

Mr. Beecher objected to inquiries into Mrs. Tilton's relations, which were wholly immaterial here. Judge Tilley so ruled, and the examination of Mr. Beecher was then finished.

The Attorney Britton said he proposed to rest the case of the people. General Prior had been present, but he told him his testimony was not required. He took pleasure in saying there was not a word of reflection upon General Prior in this case. General Prior was a gentleman, and was absolutely incapable of any improper connection with an affair of this kind. Moreover he had learned, in his investigation of this case that Prior was brought into it purely by accident, under circumstances which would deceive almost anyone.

Loeder's counsel said Price was a man who had been guilty of perjury, and he was the one whom they relied upon as a witness.

The district attorney denied this, saying he wished Price to be held with Loeder. He did not propose to use the testimony of an acknowledged perjurer against another.

Justice Riley committed Loeder and Price to await the action of the grand jury. Price acknowledged he was guilty, and Loeder plead not guilty.

Further Details of the Conspiracy.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Beecher was before the grand jury to-day to identify the Loeder and Price affidavits. Mrs. Tilton will give evidence to-morrow. Loeder's affidavit from Price is published to-day, giving the alleged details of the conspiracy, setting up the Loeder accusations against Beecher. Price says Loeder instructed him what to say, and that Morris paid him at various times small sums of money, to spend on liquors, etc. Price declares the affidavit signed by him in Morris' office is false in every particular. He was never in Tilton's house and never saw Mrs. Tilton.

Frank Moulton Threatens to Indict Beecher for Perjury.

It is asserted by the Brooklyn Argus that Moulton will endeavor to secure the indictment of Beecher by the grand jury now in session for alleged perjury, and will summon the following witnesses: Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Woodhull, Claflin, Mrs. Tilton, Theo. Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Richards, Bowen, Mrs. Tilton and others.

Beecher's Salary Increased from $20,000 to $100,000.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A largely attended meeting of Plymouth church, was held in the lecture-room of the church this evening, with J. B. Hutchinson in the chair. The chairman stated that the meeting had been called for the purpose of considering the question of increasing Beecher's salary. Henry E. Pierrepont offered a resolution to the effect that the salary of the pastor for the ensuing year be fixed at $100,000, instead of $20,000, which he has received heretofore. This was seconded by R. W. Popes. After which R. W. Raymond made a lengthy address, in which he censured the action of the press very severely. The meeting was characterized as a perfect success, and said they had all suffered by being misinterviewed, by representatives of the press of the country. S. B. White delivered a short address, in which he said that while the investigating committees were sitting, Plymouth church had made no effort to influence them in any way, and so it had been all through the trial. They had made no move whatever towards influencing the jury or anybody else in Beecher's behalf. Their time had not come until to-night, "and now," said he, "we will show the world that Plymouth church can stand a million in defense of her pastor's innocence, as it can pay a dollar for blackmail or bribery." The resolution was then put to a vote, and passed unanimously, there being not one dissenting voice. There were about four-fifths of the pew holders of the church present at the meeting, which was a very large one. It is generally understood among the congregation that this enormous salary is only for this year, and is mainly intended to help defray expenses of the trial.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Prof. Jenny's Report on the Black Hills Diggings—No Gold Found in Paying Quantities.

CHICAGO, July 7.—A Times Washington special says the interior department has received a full and complete report from Prof. Jenny, chief of the scientific exploration sent out to investigate the condition of the supposed gold fields in the Black Hills. The report confirms the first dispatch of Prof. Jenny, in which he said nothing had yet been discovered that would warrant extensive mining operations in the Black Hills. His report is in direct contradiction of the glowing tales of disinterested and opens up a question of veracity, with all indications in favor of Prof. Jenny. The report proceeds at length to explode the stories about the rich fields on French creek. He says this is the spot where miners have said the washing of loose dirt in the diggings paid from 5 cents per pan. He worked out nine buckets of the same material, and only secured 22 cents out of the whole. He says the best of the dirt does not average 10 cents per pan. He says there is some gold found, but it exists in very small quantities, and is spread over such a large area of territory as to make practical digging a failure. The next point Prof. Jenny will examine will be in the Cheyenne River, north of the great camp.

Points for Increased Mail Service Denied.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The petition of the legislative assembly of Arizona for increased mail service over routes from San Diego, California, via Tucson, Arizona Territory, to Mesilla, New Mexico, and from San Bernardino, California, via Prescott, Arizona Territory, to Santa Fe, New Mexico, has been declined on the ground that the necessities of the inhabitants do not seem to require it, and the increase asked for would necessitate an additional expense to the government of $220,000.

Naval Supplies.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Whittier, Fuller & Co., Sawtell & Co. and Linforth, Kellogg & Co. of San Francisco, are among the successful bidders for furnishing supplies to the navy yard.

Resumption of Specie Payment.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Under the act of July 18, 1874, providing for resumption of specie payments, the treasury department has disposed of about $20,000,000 bonds, known as five per cents, authorized by the act of July 14, 1870, and with the proceeds has purchased about nine millions in silver for the purpose of retiring fractional currency.

Burial of Emperor Ferdinand.

VIENNA, July 7.—The remains of Emperor Ferdinand were deposited in the church of the Capuchins, in the same vault with those of Maximilian, Emperor of Mexico.

Gloomy Outlook for Alfonso.

LONDON, July 7.—The Times to day refers to the military and political situation in Spain and gives a gloomy view of the Alfonsist cause. It says the recent minor successes of Jovellar have been outweighed by reverses elsewhere, and the Carlists seem about to give forward march. All the bright hopes Alfonso brought to Spain have vanished and his best generals are less active than heretofore. They have met defeat instead of victory. The king has not been more successful in Madrid. He has failed to satisfy the Church and has enraged the Liberals, hence the industry seem ready to try the effect of as much religious toleration as will permit Protestants to worship in the back streets, but such concession will disgust clericals and not satisfy Alfonso's political supporters. Neither has the king made peace, beyond the warring factions. The press is muzzled to prevent it from being disloyal, and there are no funds to pay the army or navy.

Pigeon Shooting—Another American Victory.

LONDON, July 7.—The pigeon-shooting match, between Bogardus, of Illinois, and Himmel, champion of England, took place to-day at Hendon, and was won easily by the former. The provisions of the match were that each should shoot at 50 birds, thirty yards, to rise from five traps five yards apart. Bogardus killed 35 to his opponent's 30. Bogardus challenges all England to shoot against him.

Gildersleeve Carries off the Belfast Cup.

BELFAST, July 7.—The shooting for a cup presented by the Mayor and citizens of Belfast took place to-day. Col. Gildersleeve won the cup over twenty-four opponents.

Details of the Shooting at Belfast.

BELFAST, July 7.—The contest for the mayor and citizens' cup was held on the range on Lord Dufferin's grounds; distance 1,600 yards. Each man was allowed five shots, the highest possible score being twenty. Several thousand persons witnessed the shooting. All members of the American team and reserves took part. The contest was exciting, especially towards the close, as the result was doubtful up to the last shot. Scores were announced as follows: Gildersleeve, American, 19; Lee, of Belfast, 19; Fulton, American, 17; Johnson, of Dublin, 18; Pine, jr., American, 17; O'Kenna, of Dublin, 17; Wylie, 16. The tie between Lawrence and Himmel was then shot off. According to the terms agreed upon, the men had three shots apiece, which the result was gave a tie. Gildersleeve and Lawrence being exactly alike. Each made two bulls-eyes and a center, counting eleven. The final result was a victory for Gildersleeve, who made three bulls-eyes in succession, scoring 12, to Lawrence's 10. The victorious American was wildly applauded by the excited spectators. In the course of the shooting for the cup Bodkin and Coleman, of the American team, made misses and were obliged to retire, in accordance with the rule requiring the withdrawal of any man who missed the target. A considerable number of Irish competitors also retired under the rule, including Poulton, a crack shot. The enthusiasm on the field for the Americans shows no signs of abatement.

After the contest, the members of the American team, and friends, accompanied by the mayor, aldermen and other leading citizens, made an excursion on Belfast "Lough." The party were entertained at Chendeboye, Lord Dufferin's country residence.

Revolutionists Defeated.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 7.—The steamer Montana, from south of the Colorado river, arrived at 11 o'clock this morning. From Captain Douglass we learn that the Mexican authorities sent 200 troops over to La Paz from Mazatlan, had a fight with the revolutionists, defeated them, and left all was quiet when the Montana left. However, as no prisoners were taken, and the revolutionists being scattered in the mountains, they might rally again and make more trouble, but this happens would remain for a time. Everything quiet at Guaymasand Mazatlan.

NATIONAL GRANGE, P. OF H., ON THE CENTENNIAL.

PORTLAND, July 6, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Not having been able till the present time to obtain any reliable information relative to the action of the National Grange on the subject of the Centennial celebration in 1876, and having heard it boldly asserted by many (who ought to know better) that the Grange treated the subject in an unfriendly manner, and neglected to recommend co-operation by the Granges in this great national enterprise, we desire to lay before the public at large, and the members of the order in this jurisdiction in particular, a part of the report of the committee on Centennial Exhibition appointed by the National Grange at its last session, at Charleston, and submitted for their action February 12, 1875:

"Cherishing the hope that adequate provisions may be made for a complete, though epitomized exhibit of our agricultural interests, we recommend to our members everywhere not to relax their efforts in preparing typical samples of their varied products, and that they be ready to assist, by all means at their command, the success of the exposition.

"As it is well known that large numbers of our members intend visiting Philadelphia during the Centennial, we also recommend that some time be selected, the date to be fixed hereafter, when as many as possible of our brotherhood may assemble at the shrine of our nation's birth to participate in such ceremonies of our order as may be considered appropriate to the occasion.

"Permit us, in closing this report, to say that we deem it a part of our mission as Patrons of Husbandry to produce among our people a proper interest in the approaching celebration of the hundredth anniversary of American independence, and to use our best endeavors to have it do the most good possible, not only by exhibiting the progress and power of a great nation during the century of its existence, but by cementing the bond which shall unite our people in the future.

"In furtherance of these views, we trust the entire management of this grand exposition will be conducted on such broad, liberal and upright principles as shall best tend to harmonize States and aid in spreading the peace of the millennial age among our people and among the nations of the earth."

On motion the report was unanimously adopted.

Will our order in this jurisdiction take concerted action on the recommendations embodied in this report, and assist those of their brothers who are using their utmost endeavors to have the agricultural, as well as other material interests of this State, represented at the exhibition?

Will the patrons of Oregon make preparations to participate in the ceremonies of our order and join in the grand procession of the proud tillers of the soil on this great occasion?

There are a few of the centennial commissioners, members of our order, who will be happy to lend their assistance to the fraternity in other, as well as to those of their own State, and prepare for the reception of the patrons as an order on the centennial grounds at a stated time in 1876.

But concert of action will be necessary, and definite arrangements have to be made to render such an undertaking a success, and make it what it should be—a credit to our order and a glorious triumphal march of the tillers of the soil to the shrine of liberty on the hundredth anniversary of our nationality.

We are confident that very favorable arrangements could be effected with the railroads for a special excursion train for this purpose, and that Patrons wishing to attend the celebration could have their own train, under their own arrangements, and furnish them with their own conveniences and comforts, if a proper effort, on the most favorable terms, if a proper course is taken and such an excursion is desired.

A. J. DUFUR,
Commissioner for Oregon.

Pioneers' Election—Exciting Contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Much interest is felt in the Pioneers' election to day on account of the recent war which has arisen within the society with regard to the defalcation of the assistant secretary. Two tickets are in the field to-day, regulars and independents, both headed by James Lick for president. The contest is with regard to secretary. The regulars support Louis R. Lull, incumbent; the independents, Dr. Stillman. The counting of the vote is not yet completed, but it is ascertained that Lull is elected, which is thought to foreshadow the success of the regular ticket.

Kicking in the Party Traces—Effects of Caucus Dictation.

The Post, Democratic, speaking of the nomination of Piper for Congress, says, this evening: "The nomination of Wm. A. Piper by the Democratic congressional convention last night, falls like a wet blanket upon the Democracy of this city. The objection is not so much to Mr. Piper himself as to the fact that, in spite of defeats, he thrusts himself forward so persistently. He has been named by the convention, for the party machinery was so handled as to effect this result, but he is certainly not the choice of the party.

Trial for Murder.

FRESNO, July 7.—The trial of H. H. Granice, for killing Edward Madden, at Merced, on the 7th of December, was commenced in the district court to-day. Court convened at 11 A. M., Judge Alexander Deering, presiding. The prisoner, a tall, fine looking man of the bar, looked a little worn from confinement, but appeared cheerful. He was accompanied by his father, mother and brothers. The prosecution was represented by District Attorney Sayle. W. L. Dudley and R. H. Ward; defense by John Hamilton, D. S. Terry and Gen. Chamberlain. Seventy-five jurors and thirty witnesses were summoned. A jury was impaneled with little trouble, sworn and charged by the judge. Recess was then taken till 4 o'clock, when the trial begins. But little excitement prevails in town.

NEWSPAPERS BY ELECTRICITY.

The London correspondent of the Liverpool Courier writes to that journal: "It has been hinted from time to time that one of our wealthy London journals has 'under consideration' the practicability of printing its sheet in several of the great towns simultaneously, in order to secure a distribution of its copies as early as the various local journals, which are so far depressing its circulation and influence paramount influence of their London contemporaries. How can this staggering feat be accomplished? The leading journal had its attention drawn some weeks ago to an electric machine in operation at the London Stock Exchange, by which the fluctuating quotations are telegraphed to a number of city offices, where an instrument, composed of movable figures and a dial plate, is made to record changes from hour to hour. If an electrical current can be made to manipulate movable figures, it was conceived that a system of mechanical type-setting might be carried on simultaneously in a number of distant places, the operation being directed from a central office in London; the news, being there collected from all parts of the world, and that the "copy" might be put in type at several provincial offices simultaneously by operating on an electric keyboard, or a number of keyboards, controlled in the central office. This idea, like so many other inventions, is not new. Mr. McKay of the Warrington Guardian worked upon the same line of invention about eight years to my knowledge, and simultaneous type-setting by machinery was by him carried to a practicable issue, though he found that his invention did not result in profit. He worked a number of type-setting machines by operating on one type-board, and proposed to set up newspaper columns for any number of papers by this simultaneous process, the only difference being that the various machines could not be placed in distant places. In other words, he did not connect them with electricity. The fact remains that he actually worked some ten or twelve machines on this principle of connected action which derived its directing power from one keyboard. There is no moral doubt that the same thing can be done on a wider scale by electric agency. But if done, would the game be worth the candle? I know the Times, or rather the manager of its mechanical department, is putting it to a private test in order to ascertain its mechanical probabilities. If that can be made clear, the Times directors are not likely to be deterred by financial timidity from the next step in the unparalleled adventure. What a world of journalistic development the prospect opens to prescient eyes!"

THE WESTERN SHAKE.

SLIGHT SHOCKS OF EARTHQUAKE IN PORTIONS OF OHIO, INDIANA AND ILLINOIS—A FEW PEOPLE FRIGHTENED, BUT NO DAMAGE DONE.

CINCINNATI, June 18.—Reports from Urbana, Sidney and other towns in Southwestern Ohio, state that about 11 o'clock this morning there was quite a severe shock of earthquake in that region. In Sidney the greater part of the shelving in a drug store was thrown to the floor, and a large number of buildings were shaken very perceptibly, cracking the walls, and the inhabitants, alarmed, ran out of the houses into the streets. A large steam boiler was moved nearly a foot from its original position.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 18.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt here this morning. Buildings were shaken to a considerable extent, and in some instances windows rattled. The following report will show the effect at various other points in this State and Ohio: At Anderson a very strong shock was felt, shaking all the buildings in the town. At Jeffersonville, Indiana, it was felt quite sensibly. At Vincennes, Indiana, the shock was very heavy. At Anna, Ohio, six miles north of Sidney, on the Dayton and Michigan railroad, it cracked all the house walls, knocked down chimneys and disturbed goods on shelves in the stores. No reports of loss of life have yet been received. At Degraff, Ohio, the shock was very strong, jarring buildings to the foundations. At Urbana, Ohio, buildings were swayed so that they could be seen to move. At Chicago a slight shock was felt in various parts of the city between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock this morning, but no damage was done in any quarter.

In the official German account of the late war the charge brought against the Bavarian troops of having butchered the inhabitants, men, women and children, of Buzeilles, and which at the time was denied, is fully admitted to be true. It was done on the principle sought to be established as a rule of war at the Brussels conference.

At present there are fourteen companies of the regular army encamped near Santa Fe.

THE PUYALLUP COAL FIELD.

REPORT OF PHILLIP G. EASTMAN CIVIL ENGINEER.

[From the Tacoma Tribune.]

The discovery on the Pacific coast of a coal of a quality that would take the place in the markets of the coast of the coals now brought from the Atlantic States and England, and in sufficient quantities and of such convenient access as to be cheaply and profitable mined, has for years been a much longed-for desideratum.

Western Washington Territory and Oregon have long been known to abound in numerous and extensive beds of brown coal, or lignite, which are found in almost all cases where the stratified rocks have been denuded of the superposed drift formation. In a few localities these coals have been mined and shipped to market, but, though finding a ready sale in limited quantities, have not answered the purpose for which the Eastern or English coals were indispensable.

For several years past rumors have been afloat of the existence on the Puyallup river of numerous beds of coal of a quality far superior to any which had before been discovered on the Pacific coast, the coal being represented to be similar to the bituminous coking coals brought from the East and from England. From the fact that similar report had been made concerning the coals of other localities, which, upon examination, however, proved to be lignite, no great reliance had been placed in the rumors concerning the superior value of the coal on the Puyallup river until July of last year, when a tract of land embracing 320 acres, and situated upon a branch of South Prairie creek, a tributary of the Puyallup river, was entered under the coal land law of March 3d, 1873. Upon this tract a bed of coal was opened, and a few tons of the coal shipped to Tacoma, from whence it was distributed to various points for trial. The superior value of the coal became manifest at once, when it was subjected to a practical test.

During the summer and fall of last year, the coal region was visited by numerous parties who confirmed all that had been previously reported in relation to the country, and added many new facts to the information which was accumulating in relation to the coal field.

The favorable reports induced many to go to this region during the past winter and spring, for the purpose of entering lands under the coal land laws, and the diligent labors of these, the outcrops of a number of beds of coal have been found, and in many cases uncovered, and the importance of the country as a valuable coal field fully demonstrated.

This coal field, as far as explored, lies between the main branch of the Puyallup river, on the south, and South Prairie creek, one of its tributaries, on the north, and embraces an area of but twenty-five square miles. As far as explorations have been pushed in the north, east and south, coal bearing rocks have been found to outcrop, while on the west the field of discovery has been limited to the gravel of the drift formation which there overlies the coal bearing rocks. It will thus be seen that no limit to this coal field has thus far been reached or defined by exploration, but that its limits lie exterior to the explored field in all directions.

The surface of the country is that of a series of high plateaus, the ground rising toward the East in a succession of rolling benches, with short and steep slopes between them. This country is heavily timbered with fir, cedar, and some spruce and hemlock. These plateaus are deeply cut by the channels of the streams which traverse them, forming narrow valleys or canyons, with very precipitous sides. Throughout the greater part of these valleys, there are, between the stream and the bases of the hillsides, bottom lands of greater or less width. In a few cases, however, the slopes of the hills terminate on both sides of the stream close to the water, and the valleys run into canyons.

The Puyallup river has no tributary stream of any magnitude within this field. It traverses the plateaus which contain the coal bearing rocks through a narrow valley from two to five hundred feet below the level of the plateau. South Prairie creek is a stream of considerable size and empties into the Puyallup river about four miles below the western boundary of the field. This stream, though the smaller of the two, has a number of tributaries which cut through the coal field in various directions. The main stream has a gentle fall, and, though running in a deep valley, is bordered throughout a greater part of its length with bottom land and low benches at the base of the hills flanking the valley. The tributary streams have a more rapid fall, and their valleys generally contain more or less of bottom land and low benches, situated, as in the case of the main stream, several hundred feet below the level of the plateau. This creek and its tributaries traverse the whole extent of the known coal field, and head up near the base of the Cascade range.

The limited amount of work thus far done in the region to develop information in regard to its geological formation affords sufficient data to form only approximately the position of the principal folds of the strata. The stratified rocks traverse the country in a general direction varying but little from north to south, with occasional local variations. Their course through the country is found to be governed with much regularity. The stratified rocks have been subjected to uplifts which have folded them in such a manner as to form a number of basins and the eastern edge of a third, with their intermediate saddles, are plainly distinguishable within the limits of the explored country. The folds are generally very abrupt and the stratified rocks dip very steeply. The rocks being exposed on the sides of the valley and in the streams, their dips and folds, and the direction of their strike through the country, are plainly discernible. It may possibly be inferred from the fact that the rocks are so abruptly folded that faults, fractures and dislocations of the strata will be found to exist. Owing to the abrupt folds to which the rocks have been subjected, this is to be looked for, yet it is found that the exposed strata show a marked degree of regularity both in their dip and in the direction which they traverse the country, and but occasional indications of such dislocations or fractures are anywhere to be found. The folds of the rock are no more frequent or abrupt than are those which are frequently met with in many parts of the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania, where no obstacle to successful and profitable mining is encountered, and fractures or dislocations of the strata greater or more numerous than are found in the latter coal field may not be looked for here.

The coal beds discovered have been so numerous, and many of them of such a character, both as to size and quality, as to establish beyond question that a supply of coal of a quality equal to any, and ample in quantity to meet all the demands of the Pacific coast for years to come, can be economically and profitably produced from the very limited area which up to the present time has been but imperfectly explored. The beds of coal at present exposed are few in number when compared to the many which by the surface indications are known to outcrop in the canyons and on the hill sides as well as in the bottoms of the smaller streams, but which have not yet been uncovered. That these are numerous is evinced by the great amount of coal detritus which is found in many places on the hill sides and in the valleys and channels of all the streams.

In view of the comparatively small amount of labor and time that have been expended in making explorations, and that mainly during the winter when work would necessarily progress slowly, and the success which has attended it, it is reasonable to suppose that further and more diligent and extended research into the resources of the country will reveal many more beds of coal, the existence of which is at present.

Within this field there are found the noncoking lignite or brown coal, a number of varieties and qualities of bituminous coal which leave upon distillation cokes of varying hardness and density and anthracite coal of good quality.

The lignite being less desirable than the other coals here found has received but little attention from explorers. The beds of this, as far as now known, outcrop only near the western boundary of the explored country.

Of the bituminous coking coals a great variety are found. But few analyses of these coals have been made, and their values have thus far generally been estimated by their practical use in blacksmith's forges, or by simply burning them in an open fireplace or grate. These tests, though rude, have demonstrated that as a fuel they are far superior to the lignite coals which are so common throughout the basin of Puget Sound. In appearance and general characteristics, many of these coals resemble the bituminous coals of Clearfield county, Pennsylvania, which are noted in the East as superior heating and steam generating coals. Upwards of thirty outcroppings of this character of coal have been found, and though it is very probable that some of them are outcroppings of the same bed in different localities, yet the examinations have shown that there are at least twelve separate and distinct beds. Among the varieties of coal in which the country abounds, there will be found the various qualities respectively adapted for heating and steam generating purposes, and for forges and gas manufacture. The beds of coal which have been noted vary in thickness from two feet to over fifteen feet, most of them being of such dimensions as to admit of economical mining. These coal beds generally are found to contain but little slate, or other impurities, some of them consisting of pure coal.

The anthracite coal has been found outcropping in but two localities. At one place is a bed of three feet thick, and at another a bed of over ten feet thick. The former consists almost entirely of bright and pure coal, while the latter is a brilliant coal interspersed with deposits of slaty coal. The coal resembles in character some of the free-burning anthracites of Pennsylvania. The last named bed is but imperfectly exposed, being covered with surface soil at the time it was examined. Report is made of the existence of other beds of anthracite in other localities.

The coal bearing rocks of this coal field consist of slates and sand stones of varying degrees of hardness.

In the absence of any research into the geological age of the deposit, but little can at present be said upon the subject. That it differs in age from that of the lignite deposit more commonly found in the valley of Puget Sound is manifest from the different character of the rocks and of the fossils which in both cases are found in large quantities.

The valleys traversing the country afford everywhere favorable opportunities to enter upon the coal beds at a level by means of drifts, from which large quantities of coal can be produced, dispensing with the necessity of deep mining, which would involve the erection of expensive hoisting and pumping machinery to raise the coal to the surface and to drain the mines. There is enough coal accessible above water level to supply all the demand that could be expected for years to come. The country being heavily wooded will afford all the timber which will be required for timbering the mines and for other purposes connected with mining.

Up to the present time not more than one-fourth of the country now definitely known to contain coal, has been entered or claimed by parties who contemplate entering under the coal land law referred to. As a rule parties who have gone to the region with a view to enter land have limited their explorations to the tracts selected, as soon as such selections were made. This will account for the limited extent which is now defined as containing the coal bearing rocks.

Appearances indicate that large areas of valuable coal land lie exterior to the present explored limits to the north, east and south. It is to be hoped that during the favorable weather of the present summer explorers will penetrate into this country, and there reveal the existence of as good a coal bearing region as has been heretofore found.

I would especially call the attention of explorers to any portion of the main South Prairie creek, which has thus far been but little examined. The beds of coal already found, traversing the country in that direction, will in all probability be found to outcrop on that stream. The confluence of South Prairie creek and of the Puyallup river is at a point twenty miles from tidewater at New Tacoma, at which point the river empties into Puget Sound. The valley of the river, throughout this entire distance, is wide and fertile bottom, and affords the shortest and most practicable route for a railroad from the coal field to tidewater. From the confluence of the two streams named to the coal

OREGON WHEAT.

Although Oregon has at least some reputation abroad for various productions of merit, she is chiefly noted for the excellent quality of her grain, and Oregon wheat is now known distinctively "on change" in the great grain markets of the bread-eating English, and sustains an enviable reputation. The climate and quality of soil in our State seem unusually well adapted to bringing to its greatest perfection this cereal, and the Chile club, and Oregon club wheat raised here, rank everywhere where they are known as the best. The latter variety is supposed, and as a matter of fact generally admitted to have originated on the farm of Mr. Foisy in Marion county, and appears to be fast becoming a favorite with the farmers who have tried it. It seems to make but little difference whether our farmers raise spring or fall wheat, for that sown in February, March or April turns out equal in quality to that sown in the fall, and we know of more than one instance where grain merchants and shippers who peremptorily declined to buy "spring wheat" on account of its supposed inferior quality, have pronounced a certain quality of white wheat first class, when in fact, the same had been sown in March or April and harvested in August.

The increase in our direct shipments is another means by which our leading cereal is becoming better known and more highly appreciated. For the past four years this increase has been one hundred per cent., and though it may not be so great during the harvest year of 1875, it will doubtless be quite in keeping with the other branches of our commerce, and will add still more to the reputation which Oregon has already in the markets of Europe for producing an unexcelled and rarely equalled quality of breadstuffs.

WAR ON MONOPOLIES.

We are in receipt of the first number of the Industrial Advocate, published at Bellefonte, Pa., and edited by W. W. Brown. It contains a printed slip which bears the signature of Horace H. Day, and states that he (Day) has paid for the paper to be sent to us free for three months. We are also invited to become a subscriber after that time has expired. The Advocate is one of the rankest sort of defenders of the doctrine of "equal rights of all men and women," which we have ever read, and though its editor may be commended for his zeal, his judgment in making indiscriminate war on all corporations and leaving no opportunity unimproved to give capital a thrust, is hardly consistent with his profession of an "earnest desire to promote the welfare of the whole human family."

He assails with equal ferocity, we might almost say, the manufacturer and merchant, the banker and shipper, the railroad and steamboat companies, and the newspapers come in for a share of his wrath in the following paragraph:

"The average great newspapers of to-day are simply part of the great monopoly machinery for plundering the people and nothing which does not promote such results appear longer to interest these great publishing corporations known as our great city dailies. If they attack an evil or allude in any way to the great railroad and banking systems of robbery, it is evident to a close reader, done only to compel these robbers of the public to share a larger proportion of the plunder with themselves, whereupon they again become silent and satisfied."

This onslaught on the leading journals of the country, without distinction, will probably meet with the rebuke which its unfairness deserves, and prove to be a positive detriment to the cause he seeks to propagate.

But others than the newspapers receive his attention, and among the objects upon which he pours one of his vials of indignation is the act of the last Congress in providing for a return to specie payments. He says:

"The government"—that is, Grant's administration—continues the contraction of the currency and the farmers, iron mills and manufacturing establishments of the country continue to suspend operations, thereby throwing more and more labor out of employment. Certainly, contraction, in these times, to arrive at a specie basis, is anything else than a wise policy, provided you wish to benefit the whole people. If you wish to gorge the coffers of the gold ring with still more gold, and entirely wipe out the industries of the country, a better plan than contracting the currency to the specie basis humbug could not have been devised. In plain words the specie basis folly is one of the greatest as well as the most destructive frauds of the day."

After manifesting just a little of the "milk of human kindness" for "iron mills and manufacturing establishments" in the above, he elevates the capillary substance from the craniums of the two old political parties in the following unfeeling style:

"Some one has remarked that you might as well attempt the manufacture of powder in the infernal regions as to carry a correct principle of economy into effect through either the Republican or the Democratic party, and goes on to say that the manipulating party managers are stronger than the people. The people get the platforms, but the money monopolists get the law. They divide results each time as did the division of cheese between the monkey and cat. The money power continues master and the people the servants. No matter how much or how bitterly the parties may fight each other upon other matters, upon the vital, economic question that affects each citizen in his purse and store, they are a unit against the people and in favor of their oppressors. The same adversaries of the people's interest work in both of them, and get in their work each time at the vital point.

We might go on and enumerate a dozen other topics upon which he pounces with an equal fury, but we have given sufficient to indicate the character of his paper. All are alike in tenor, and though his views on many things are in the main correct there are certain rights which all men, when appealed to for candor, concede as belonging to the possessor of property acquired by honest and honorable means. In fact, all advocates of the contrary theory start out on the wrong assumption, that the interests of labor and capital are necessarily at variance, when the true theory is that they are in a great measure identical. The latter affords opportunities for the employment of the former, and labor adds to the value of capital. They are exchangeable commodities, and one is comparatively powerless without the other. Opposition to monopolies is in many cases adhesion to the rights of the people, but indiscriminate war on corporations is hardly justified by the abuses which some of them practice. Let labor have its proper reward, but the amount of that reward must be determined by the law of supply and demand and not by legislative enactments. Newspapers, railroads, steamboats, iron mills and manufacturing establishments, properly conducted and managed, are a part of the means by which our country is to be made great and prosperous; but when powerful corporations cease to respect the rights of laboring men, and to which the latter are always entitled, they become the just objects of such attacks as are made in the paper from which we have quoted.

Tom Allen, who has acquired somewhat of a reputation as a participant in the heathenish scenes of the prize-ring, imitates some superannuated and worn-out statesmen we have heard of, and announces his intention of retiring from public life. He publishes a mournful valedictory, in which he says: "I bid good-bye to the ring once and forever." He says that of his career as a pugilist he has nothing to say. He leaves the public to judge of that, and flatters himself "that it will bear inspection, and not compare unfavorably with the records in general of men of the profession," of which he now takes leave. "Whatever mistakes I may have made outside of the prize-ring—and we are all liable to mistakes," he says, pathetically, "were errors more of the mind than of the heart, and are ever to be regretted by me." Mr. Allen is disgusted with the ring because of some recent performances, and he takes his leave in a melancholy frame of mind. There was a fine opportunity for him to have said of the ring, as the little girl remarked to her doll, that it was filled with sawdust, but he is too sad for such unseemly sport. He silently folds his fists and takes the train from New York to St. Louis.

There being nothing in our constitution or form of government to prevent anybody, or any convention, making presidential nominations, the National Christian Anti-Secret Society had a perfect right to put up the Hon. J. B. Walker, of Illinois, for President, and Donald Kirkpatrick, of Syracuse, N. Y., for Vice President. The New York Tribune thinks that a curious history might be written of "movements" of this sort—very local affairs, indeed, and with no odor of nationality about them at all. When William Wirt was nominated for President long ago by the Anti-Masons, it was not exactly clear what he could do for anti-masonry, if elected. What Mr. Walker would do, if elevated to the chair, in behalf of his notion, we hardly see more clearly.

The success of the small steamer Ohio in navigating the Upper Willamet at a very low stage of the water the present summer, is causing a good deal of inquiry as to whether, with a comparatively small outlay, the most of the carrying trade for the upper part of the valley could not be done on boats of the proper build, if the river in a few places was dredged, as it might be, and a few obstructions removed. We incline to the opinion that a fair examination into this question would reveal the fact that in no direction could an expenditure of money be more profitably made than in the effort to open the river, at least to Eugene the year round for boats of the proper build, but which would be able to do all the freighting business required.

A private letter from Newport, on Yaquina Bay, states that the preliminary railroad survey from Corvallis to tidewater has been completed, and the terminus located at McLane's Point. The event was to be duly celebrated by the citizens of the vicinity on last Monday. The distance from Corvallis by the surveyed route is 61¼ miles, and this can be shortened three or four miles. The people of Yaquina are jubilant with the hope which even this small beginning gives them, and are already talking of selling town lots and choosing names for the streets of the terminal city.

The editor of the Salem Statesman seeks to display a sort of vulgar wit, that being the only kind of which he is master, by allusions to the amount of hair on the head of the editor of this paper, and, in imitation of the children in the good book, calls us "bald head." Now, while we are not a prophet, we predict that while no she bears will likely "come out of the woods" and "tear him in pieces," we shall expect to hear of a funeral at the Statesman office, when the fool-killer passes that way.

BARNUM'S CELEBRATION.—While that cock-robin who escaped the just fate which Barnum dealt out to his whole tribe was floating in the London Standard of last Monday against the Crystal Palace celebration of the Fourth, a British subject of the genuine stripe was going full honor to our ninety-ninth anniversary away out here at Portland-on-the-Willamette. There is no subject of Victoria more loyal than Capt. Strachan, of the bark Forward, and none who is at the same time more ready to appreciate the lessons which the celebrations as those of Monday are calculated to teach. And so the captain put his guns in order and honored the Fourth with a hearty salute. Had the boom produced under which it is his pride to fire could not have entered into the celebration with greater spirit. His ship being down in the neighborhood of Weidler's wharf, the report of his cannon failed to reach the ears in time for publication among the items relating to Monday; but those on board the captain as he gave his men the word of command, and observed the manner in which he kept up the firing, concur in stating that the celebration on board the Forward on the morning of mention even a day behind the times.

ARTEMUS MILLER.—An exchange says of this literary celebrity: "Joaquin Miller has provoked many sharp criticisms on his poetry, but even his public conduct under the trying of domestic afflictions. He has generally refused to say anything, in self-defense or otherwise, concerning the attack made upon him by his former wife and by Western newspapers. Almost the only allusion he has ever made to these attacks is in the preface to his new book, where he says: 'I have been true to my West. She is my only love. I have remembered her in my best moments. I have done my work to show forth her greatness, her riches, her resources, her valor and her dignity, her poetry and her grandeurs.' Yet while I was going on,
as you see, in silence, what were the things
I was doing? But let that pass, my dear friend. Others will come after us. Perhaps I have found out the trail for great minds in future, as you did across the deserts and mountains for great men a quarter of a century ago."

TO THE STEPHENS.—We learn that the steamer John L. Stephens was on the Columbia river, and about twenty miles above Astoria, in attempting to land at a point became unmanageable and struck on Point, a high ledge of rocks projecting into the stream. Her bowsprit was carried away and the forward part of the vessel somewhat shattered. The damage will be repaired at San Francisco. The accident is not a very serious one, but enough to frighten some of the passengers half out of their wits. The steamer Otter happened to be on the opposite side of the stream and responded to the distress signal from her. It took some time and trouble to get her off.

ENROLLED.—The following officers were installed by D. D. G. M., C. A. Dolph, for Willamette Lodge No. 2 for the present term:

FIRE ENGINES.—At their regular meeting on Thursday evening Columbian Engine
No. 1 elected Thos. A. Jorden, foreman,
Jas. Schmeer, 1st assistant foreman, vice Jorden, promoted, and Ned. Wicks resigned. W.
Wicks was chief engineer, and for several years foreman of Co. 3, was nominated, but declined in favor of Jorden, who was elected by acclamation.

COUNTY COURT.—Yesterday the

and after this date all persons having bills against the county to be considered by this court must file the same with the county clerk on or before the Tuesday following the first Mon-

Turn in and keep it up till every man is at his post on the field.

A match game played at Vancouver on the 4th, between the Spartans, of that place, and the Multnomahs, of this city, resulted in favor of the former by 36 to 29. Mr. Snow was umpire.

The recent base ball excursion to Oregon City netted a large sum, and the "divy" fully covered the injury done on that occasion by the Indian boys. Our base ballists will work cooler in future. Constant practice and good generalship will bring about a marked change in the strength of the average base ball player.

REPORT OF STANDING COMMITTEE.

Committee on fire and water reported that they had awarded contract to raise bell tower to S. M. Hart at $350. Report placed on file.

REPORT OF OFFICERS.

Report of chief engineer presented, read, placed on file and referred to committee on fire and water. From this report we make the following extract:

To the Mayor and Common Council—GENTLEMEN: In compliance with the provisions of the act of the legislature of the State of Oregon, regulating the fire department of Portland, I have the honor to submit the following summary of the present condition of the fire department, inclusive of the number of the force, apparatus, houses, and other property under my control; also the number of fires and alarms since July 1, 1874, and the estimated loss of property thereby, together with such other matters and suggestions as the necessities require and past experience will justify.

STRENGTH OF THE DEPARTMENT.

The manual force of the department consists of one chief engineer, two assistant engineers, and three hundred and sixteen registered officers and members of companies.

APPARATUS IN SERVICE.

Two second-class Amoskeag steamers; one second-class Silsby steamer; two third-class Silsby steamers; two second-class hand engines, side stroke; one hook and ladder truck; three four-wheeled hose carriages; four two-wheeled hose carts; four tenders for steamers.

APPARATUS IN RESERVE.

One second-class hand engine, side stroke.

CLASSIFICATION AND CONDITION.

Willamette Engine Co. No. 1.—Location, south side of Morrison street, between First and Second. Consists of fifty-six members. House, two-story brick, 22x50 feet; too small for accommodation of the company. Needs some repairs referred to in last report.

Apparatus.—One second-class Amoskeag steamer; built in 1873, at Manchester, N. H.; has two double acting pumps, four inches in diameter and eight inches stroke, and two steam cylinders, 6½ inches in diameter by 8 inches stroke—all in good order. Two four-wheeled carriages, one second-hand, purchased in San Francisco in 1866; one built in 1860 by William Jeffers, in Pawtucket, R. I., for Columbian No. 3. One four-wheeled hose carriage, to carry 800 feet of hose, of the Amoskeag pattern, is being built for this company. The two reels now in use by this company carry about 1,000 feet of carbolized hose. They have also a tender for the steamer.

Multnomah Engine Co. No. 2.—Location, west side of Second street, between Oak and Pine. Consists of seventy-five members. House, two-story brick; new; roof and front require painting.

Apparatus—One second-class Silsby engine; built at Seneca Falls, N. Y., 1873; in good order. One third-class steamer, of the same makers, built in 1865; with the exception of a few slight repairs now being made, this engine is in good order. One two-wheeled hose cart, built in 1857, by Runnemann & Co., of Roxbury, Mass., and one two-wheeled cart, built in 1868, by the same firm; both in good order. The two reels carry about 1,200 feet of carbolized hose. One tender for steamer.

Columbia Engine Co., No. 3.—Location, south side of Washington street, between Second and Third. Consists of fifty-four members. House, two-story brick; inside requires renovating and repainting.

Apparatus—One second-class steamer of the same size and build of No. 1 steamer, and built at the same time; in good order. One four-wheeled hose carriage, built by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company in 1873; in good order; the reel carries 800 feet of hose. One tender for steamer; in good order.

Protection Engine Co., No. 4.—Location, west side of First street, near the corner of Jefferson. Consists of sixty-one members. House, two-story brick; inside needs renovating. The alarm bell on this house has been ordered to be recast, and when it is again to be erected I think it would be wise to erect a more substantial frame work for its support than that which now remains.

Apparatus.—One third class rotary steamer, built by Silsby, at Seneca Falls, New York, in 1867; in good order. One two-wheeled hose cart, built in this city; needs painting; the reel carries 550 feet carbolized rubber hose. One tender for the engine. One four-wheeled carriage, of the Amoskeag pattern, is in course of construction for this company's use.

Tiger Engine Co. No. 5.—Location, east side Fourth street, between Mill and Montgomery; consists of fifty-one members. House (two-story frame), in good condition; the doors require rehanging.

Apparatus.—One second-class hand engine, cylinders nine inches diameter, with variable stroke, from five and a half to eleven inches, built in 1860 by Wm. Jeffers, Pawtucket, Rhode Island; in good order. One two-wheeled hose cart, built by James Smith, New York City, in 1856; is needs some repairs and repainting; the reel carries 500 feet of leather hose.

Vigilance Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1.—Located on the east side of Fourth street, between Morrison and Yamhill. Consists of twenty-one members. House, two-story frame. The front doors are badly hung, and require rehanging; otherwise the house is good order.

Apparatus.—One hook and ladder, built in this city in 1866, is in general good order, with the exception of some repairs needed to the crabs at the ends of the tongue and tiller, which should be made at once. The truck carries seven ladders, four hooks, two ramsays, two rakes, four tormenters, six axes and two crowbars, all in good order.

At the warehouse of the Oregon Dock and Warehouse Company, under their charge, the hand engine built by James Smith, in New York, in 1855, formerly used by Nos. 1, 4 and 5, has been placed for service in the immediate vicinity. The engine is side-stroke, cylinders 8½ in diameter by from 7 to 9 inch stroke. The condition of the engine has been reported already to you more than a month since, and therefore it is unnecessary to repeat it.

In No. 5's house is the engine used by Willamette, No. 1, before the purchase of a steamer for them. It was used by No. 5 while repainting the engine assigned to them for their use, and will be returned to the corporation shed when the building is ready to receive it. It is a side-stroke engine, cylinders 10 inch diameter, and from 3½ to 7-inch stroke; was built about 1864, by Button & Blake, at Waterford, New York; with a few slight repairs to be made it is in good order.

HOSE.

There is in the department 4,000 feet of carbolized rubber hose; 3,800 feet of this is apparently serviceable, and 200 feet bursted or otherwise unfit for service. The most of this hose has been in use several years, and is rapidly decaying. In January last you provided for the purchase of 1,000 feet of rubber hose. I am informed a contract was made with Mr. Buchtel, a few weeks ago, to furnish 1,000 feet of rubber hose, to be provided with Buchtel's signal telegraph. It is hoped the hose will arrive in a few weeks.

One year ago my predecessor called your attention to the necessity, and told the means of taking care of rubber hose, to prevent rapid decay. I have also reminded you of it in former reports, and named the number of extra feet of hose required to double the suits of the several companies, so that dry hose can be had after each fire to take the place of those not in the service.

We have in service 800 feet of leather hose, and at the corporation shed 1,100 feet more, all in but ordinary condition, requiring considerable repairs and thorough oiling. Well cared for, this hose might answer for some time for light service, but it is unfit for steamer work. Experience has taught us that poor hose is the most expensive, as accidents arising thereby cause delays in the service and consequent needless destruction of property. I place very little value on this leather hose for fire purposes, and do not hesitate to say it would be better to dispose of it at an early day and replace it with good hose.

CORPORATION SHED.

Last fall and winter a corporation shed and bell-tower were erected on the east side of Fourth street, between Morrison and Yamhill—a one-story frame building, boarded and battened with green lumber. From the effects of the summer sun the south side of the building is very light, having a great many more openings now than were in the original plan. Before the fall rains begin it should be weatherboarded and painted. The tin gutters leak also very badly, and all the water which comes from the roof runs under the foundation.

The supervision of the property kept in the shed, I suppose, falls to me. It will be necessary to make a small appropriation to pay for labor about the premises which will be required to take care of the property. If an additional allowance be made to Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company, on condition that their steward shall attend to the ordinary work at the corporation shed, I believe it will be the most economical manner of taking care of the property.

FIRE ALARM BELL.

The bell purchased by the committee on fire and water about eighteen months ago, but not proved to be of the first order; yet by skillful management, though in a bad locality, I believe its tones may be made more available for its purpose. The tower has been enlarged and the bell elevated about thirty feet higher than before. This has improved it somewhat, but it will require still better treatment to be heard in different parts of the city. I am not aware what amount of work is contracted for on the bell-tower; but at this writing it is unenclosed, unpainted and without any conveniences for ascending or descending, a duty required to be performed at least once or twice a week. The contractor informs me his work is done except taking down his ladders and scaffolding. I trust you will give this matter immediate attention, if not already provided for.

A. B. HALLOCK,
Chief Engineer.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Frank Gilder gives his farewell concert next Saturday evening at Masonic Hall. The programme will embrace a grand concert of vocal and instrumental music and, for the first time in Portland, will be presented Offenbach's beautiful opera "Lischen and Fritzchen." As the Gilder troupe leave next week for San Francisco, this will be their last appearance in our city. Mr. Gilder has placed the price of admission at 50 cents. Reserved seats for 25 cents extra, can be procured at Gray's music store, on Friday and Saturday.

A small but highly cultivated audience was present last evening at Masonic Hall, the attraction being the benefit of Mr. Thomas Whiffin, the well known actor, violinist and tenor. A most excellent programme was presented on the occasion, and rendered in a very satisfactory manner. Part first opened with "Fantasia on Scotch Airs," for a violin and piano, by Mr. Whiffin and Miss Galton. Following that came a song by Mr. Whiffin, a duet by Miss Galton and Mr. Chas. Lancaster—rendered in capital style—a piano solo by that prince of performers, Frank Gilder; "Grand Valse" (As You Like It Assorta), by Mrs. Eugenie Babcox; the "White Squall," by Mr. Charles Lancaster—rendered in that gentleman's usual felicitous style; a song by Mr. Whiffin; a ballad, "Oh! Dublin Bay," by Miss Blanche Galton, rendered with much true feeling and effect; a recitation, "The Jackdaw of Rheims," by Mr. G. A. Dobinson, and a piano solo by Mr. Gilder. Part second consisted of Offenbach's comic opera in one act, entitled "La Rose de la Fleur." In this opera Mr. Whiffin assumed the role of "Marcelin," a blacksmith, Miss Blanche Galton "Patatou," a shoemaker, and Mrs. Babcox "Lisette," a hotel keeper. The opera was rendered in the most spirited manner possible, and afforded great pleasure and amusement to the audience, and sent them home in a delighted state of mind.

BUENA VISTA TRAGEDY.

A correspondent of the OREGONIAN, writing from Buena Vista under date of the 4th, says in reference to the recent case of wife murder and suicide: "One of the most terrible shooting affairs took place here to-day that we have ever witnessed or heard. Wm. F. Franklin, alias Tubbs, came into this neighborhood about ten months since, and soon after married a woman by the name of Josephine Browning. Since that time they have had a great deal of domestic trouble, and have separated several times. About three days ago they separated, and since that time there has been much trouble between them. About 6 o'clock P. M. to-day, Franklin came to the house where his wife was staying, and asked permission to enter. After gaining consent, he went in and walked up to his wife, saying at the same time, 'Josey, I want to talk with you a moment.' Just then he drew a revolver and shot his wife in the left breast, the ball passing directly through the heart. She fled from the house crying and screaming, ran about thirty yards and fell dead. Franklin then turned the pistol to his own breast and shot himself. He stood an instant and rolled to the floor, gave a gasp or two and expired. A jury was immediately summoned by J. S. Kays, J. P., as follows: G. A. Wells, A. J. Richardson, W. R. Hall, J. T. Fletcher, J. Miller and D. M. Colbreth. After examining a few witnesses and seeing the examination of Dr. Rutan, the jury soon returned a verdict in accordance with the facts as above stated. The evidence showed that Franklin was under the influence of liquor at the time. The sensation produced was quite intense in the neighborhood. Mrs. F. was the daughter of a highly respected family."

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

From the Albany Daily Register we obtain the following additional particulars: "Last Sunday evening about 7 o'clock a resident of Buena Vista, who gave his name and had been generally known as William Franklin, but whose real name was William Franklin Tubbs, went into his residence, sat down by the side of his wife on a lounge, and while encircling her neck with his left arm, drew from his person a revolver with his right hand, and placing the muzzle of the weapon immediately over her heart, fired. True to its mission, the ball from the pistol penetrated the heart of Mrs. Tubbs, and with one despairing cry she sprang from her murderer's embrace and fled from the house, gasping and bleeding—reached the front gate and fell, a corpse. The murderer then turned his attention to the sister of his wife, who was in the room when the fatal shot was fired, but she had fled so quickly that he had not time to carry out his murderous intentions with regard to her; seeing which, without losing a moment's time, he wound up his cowardly tragedy by turning his weapon upon himself, and discharging another chamber, sent a leaden messenger crashing through his own head, which killed him instantly. Our informant could give no reason for this double murder, or account for it on any other hypothesis except that Tubbs was partially insane.

"From Mr. Drury Hodges, who came over this morning, we get further particulars of the above tragedy: Tubbs and his wife had parted several times, and had had more or less trouble ever since their marriage. On Sunday evening he went to the house where his wife was stopping, sat down by her and engaged in conversation, all the time having his revolver under and concealed by his coat, when he fired, the shot passing through his coat into his wife's side. His wife's sister, being in the yard and hearing the report of the pistol, attempted to enter the house, when Tubbs pointed the pistol at her; she jumped back, slamming the door to, and ran. Tubbs then shot himself, the ball entering his left lung. Neither party spoke a word after the first shot."

DEATH OF CHARLES McCOY, ESQ.

In the Freeport (Ill.) Bulletin of June 17th we find the following notice of the death of a brother of Mr. J. M. McCoy, a well known citizen of Portland:

On Saturday noon our citizens were pained to learn that Charles McCoy had been stricken down by death. He had been in usual health and appeared at his office on that morning to attend to his duties, that of road-master of the Illinois Central railroad. About noon he was missing from the office and was soon after found outside dead, having fallen in an apoplectic fit, as was afterwards found by the coroner's jury. Mr. McCoy was born in county Derry, Ireland, in 1822, and came to America in his seventeenth year. He has been in the employ of the company with which he was connected twenty-three years, and has always been recognized by the officers as a valued and trustworthy employee, which his many years' service in responsible positions bear positive evidence.

At an early age he became a devout and sincere Christian, and was a strict adherent to the Catholic faith. He was a member of St. Mary's congregation of this city, and always took an active interest in the welfare of the church, and as a prominent member, guarded its interests with fidelity and without selfish motives. He was beloved by his pastor almost as a brother, and respected by every member of the church. Mr. McCoy was quite unassuming in his manners, with a kind and cordial welcome at all times for his friends; a man who endeavored to do good to his fellow men as he passed through life. The poor and needy have lost a kind friend, his purse being always open for their relief and comfort, and contributed in an ostentatious manner. Kind and honest in all his transactions, he has passed away, regretted by all who knew him. Mr. McCoy was a member of St. Mary's Sodality, and had been the treasurer of that society since its organization. He leaves a wife and son who are almost crazed at the suddenness of the death of so kind and affectionate husband and father. His brother, Hon. A. J. McCoy, and his sister, Mrs. M. Fagan, reside in this city; he has also brothers and sister living in Vermont and Oregon.

The funeral obsequies took place at St. Mary's church on Monday morning, and were conducted by the Rev. Father Hedgett. Dr. Dixon, assisted by several clergy. The services were grand and impressive.

Hot, ain't it? Go to Fabre & Barnes for a capital lunch.

The AMERICAN EXCHANGE HOTEL is still run by Quimby, who has been here for the past ten years, and intends to continue. He has no connection whatever with the St. Charles Hotel. His old patrons may be sure of always meeting him at the American Exchange as of old. jy7d

His stock of Clothing, Furnishing Goods, etc., for gentlemen and youths, is large, fresh and suitable for the present season. Recollect the place, opposite National Bank, and that you have only a few days to avail yourself of this opportunity to get bargains.

Why will you continue to pay big prices for Clothing while those well known dealers in that desirable article, BECK & WALDMAN, are offering such bargains. The dull times necessitates a great reduction and they propose to keep the public supplied at any sacrifice. Each steamer brings them new goods, and they sell from the entire stock at the reduced rates. Call while the opportunity to buy low is offered. Youths' clothing a specialty.

Three Attainable Blessings.

A good appetite, vigorous digestion and sound sleep are three blessings that imply a good many more, and are attainable by the daily use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The stomach that is invigorated by that ruling tonic rapidly disposes of the food committed to it, and at the proper time craves for more with natural earnestness, and the brain from which pain and despondency have been banished by that salutary anodyne and cheering cordial, enjoys at the hour of rest that tranquil, dreamless repose for which no other boon that Providence can bestow can compensate. Besides these most desirable results, the entire physique is strengthened and fortified against the attacks of disease by this splendid vitalizer and protective agent, which, taken regularly, will renovate it altogether, is about the most unquestionably one of the most popular medicines in existence.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is a combination and a form indeed "for healing and curing diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. It cures a cough by loosening and cleansing the lungs, and allaying irritation; thus removing the cause, instead of only stopping up the cough and leaving the disease behind.

VOYAGES

We are floating on the river of time
Voyagers together we noiselessly glide
Drifting away to that beautiful clime
Eye hath not seen on the other side
Yesterday gay as step dawn from the shore
Into our barks at the dawning of day—
Others to morrow will follow us o'er—
For none the glad light of the morning will stay

We are midway out on the river of time
And drift with the tide that we cannot resist
It is sweeping us on to an ultimate clime
That is hid from our vision in far folded mist
Manhood has stamped its stern seal on our brow Life like a swift panorama moves by Sunshine and shadows are over us now
Is it life or pale death in that westering sky?

We have almost crossed o'er the river of time
The wind and the billows have left us a wreck
What ails from you mist like some angel wrought chime?
May we still look with courage and hope from the deck?
Aged and silent and gray we have grown
Battered our barks, our sails they are riven
Yet we feel we are coming to friends we have known
When we enter the gateway of death and of heaven

"SHE WAS A BRICK.'

A GEORGIA WOMAN'S EXPLOIT WITH A MISSISSIPPI GAMBLER

[From the Vicksburg Herald.]

It was one of the handsomest packets on the river, and among the passengers bound for Vicksburg were a Georgian and his wife, who have relatives in Mississippi

He was a large sized, handsome looking man, and she was a pleasant-looking little woman with blue eyes and short chestnut curls One would have said that she would have screamed at a tilt of the boat

He sat smoking with other gentlemen after she had retired to her state room and the cabin was entirely free of ladies, when some one proposed a game of cards In ten minutes after half a dozen men were shuffling cards over cabin tables, and the Georgian was matched against a stranger to all on board He was a quiet, courteous, well-dressed man, and had been taken for a traveler in search of health He was lucky with his cards but he did not propose playing for stakes It was the notified Georgian who proposed it He called himself a champion hand at poker, and when he found that he had met his equal he determined to test the stranger's financial metal

They had fifty dollars on the table when the Captain looked into the cabin He caught the Georgian's eye and gave him to understand that his opponent was a river black-leg but the other gentlemen had dropped their cards and crowded around, money was up, and the information had come too late Besides, the Georgian was doing well enough, and he flattered himself that he could teach the courteous black leg a lesson

It was a very quiet group around the table, and after the play had continued for fifteen minutes the gentlemen spoke in whispers, and some of them were reminded of old times on the Mississippi, when gamblers had the full run of every boat

The Georgian had luck with him from the start, and while he looked smiling and confident, the gambler appeared to grow excited and uneasy His money was raked across the table until the Georgian had $200 in greenbacks before him. The stakes had been light up to this time, both men seeming to fear each other's skill The Georgian proposed to increase them, and the gambler agreed In ten minutes the latter had his $200 back. Luck had turned The Georgian lost $20, then $50, then $100

The gambler's face wore a quiet smile, as the Georgian became nervous His hands trembled as he held up the cards, and his face was wet with moisture

"Come, gentlemen!" said one of the group, "let's have a general hand for amusement, and then turn in"

The Georgian looked up with a fixed glance, and replied

I have lost $400, he must give me a fair show!"

The play went on The heap of green backs at the gambler's right hand grew larger Once in a while the Georgian won but he lost $10 for every one gained. He finally laid down his cards, pulled a roll of bills from a breast pocket, and counted out $300 This was his pile In less than ten minutes every dollar of it had been added to the gambler's heap

"Gentlemen, will you smoke?" asked the gambler, as he turned around and drew his cigar case

They knew his true character in spite of his disguise, and they refused.

"I am sorry for my friend," he continued, biting at the end of a cigar, 'but you will agree that the play was fair'

The Georgian had passed out on the promenade deck The gambler turned to his stack of bills and was counting them when there was a sharp exclamation, the sounds of a brief struggle and the little woman with blue eyes and chestnut curls entered the cabin. She was half undressed, a shawl thrown over her shoulders, and she had a revolver in her hand

No one had seen her leave her stateroom and cross the cabin No one knew that her husband had the revolver in his hand as she softly came upon him "Go back!" he whispered—"I am coming in a moment!

With swift motion she seized the weapon, wrenched it from his grasp, and as she came down the cabin to the table at which the gambler sat, and around which half a dozen men yet lingered her blue eyes were full of fire

The gambler looked up

The hammer of the revolver came up with a double click

A white arm stretched out, and the muzzle of the revolver looked straight into the gambler's face

He turned pale, the men fell back

For half a minute the deep silence was broken only by the faint splash of the paddle wheels.

"Go!" she said.

He looked into her flaming eyes as if he could bluff her

"Go!"

He rose up and reached for the money

'Leave it!" she whispered, making a threatening motion with the revolver

He retreated back

She followed

Foot by foot he backed across the cabin, the muzzle of the revolver always on a line with his face He backed through the door on the promenade deck and the rushing was there

'Jump!" she whispered

The boat was running along within three hundred feet of the shore Over the rail to the water was a terrible leap

'You can have the money," he said

'Jump'" she repeated

I will not!

The arm came up a little and the light from the cabin showed him a cold, strange determined look on her face He turned about shivered, and was over the rail leaping far out and unable to suppress a cry of alarm, as he felt himself going down

The boat swept along her arm fell, and re entering the cabin she sat down, leaned her head on the table and wept bitterly

The passengers said she was a "brick Was she?

The financial condition of our home market is one which is not often easily described from any point occupied by different individuals having much to do in the formation of ideas as to whether money is plentiful or the market stringent Hence it is only by a comparison of the views of the many that a correct conclusion can be arrived at To the habitual croaker the times are always dull or out of joint and in his view the country is never prosperous but to the hopeful there are now many circumstances which are encouraging as we look at the present condition and those things which are likely to have weight in affecting the future of our business interests Among these are promises of good crops and a fair supply of money to move them after the harvest That the products of our soil will bear a fairly remunerative price seems highly probable the immigration coming into our State by the hundreds every week will create a much larger home demand the crops in nearly all the countries which compete with Oregon in supplying foreign markets are at best less promising than last year and below average so that the demand likely to come to us from abroad will be brisker Again it now seems that the supply of tonnage on the way to this coast is quite large and though comparatively a small proportion of it is under engagement yet when the vessels arrive they will of course be on the market and should the supply be larger than the demand freights must rule low or ships go away in ballast which is not likely they will do unless charters should go below all reasonable rates These several circumstances which all admit exist, give assurance of a material revival of business matters in our city and the State at large during the coming autumn Of course some unforseen disaster might change the condition of affairs very much but we see no reason at present why we may not look forward to the near future with much hopefulness

But few items of general interest concerning business matters are reaching us from the East at this time of the year Much more so than on this coast is the present period there regarded as one expected to be peculiarly dull Except the regular financial transactions of the government but few important monetary investments are made in the great commercial centers on the Atlantic coast during the heated term which has now set in

A few days since $30 000 000 called bonds fell due and an impression seemed prevalent that these may be exchanged for or turned into 6 per cents in payment for new fives This however is not the case says Secretary Bristow they can only be redeemed in coin and are not exchangeable for any other species of government securities

There is some comment in Canadian banking circles regarding a notice issued by the financial minister to various banks to hold themselves in readiness for calls upon them on account of government deposits The amount of government deposits in the banks of Ontario and Quebec on the 30th of April last payable on demand was $3 50' 716 Amount payable after notice or on a fixed day was $4 681 8 The Montreal banks held nearly half of the total amount.

Trade Matters

Show very perceptibly the effect of the very warm weather we are now having and our wholesale and jobbing houses are doing but a limited amount of business. The outlook however is not discouraging as the stocks which were shipped to the interior during the spring months were not unusually large, and reports indicate that the demand has very materially increased, so that but few country merchants still carry any considerable amounts of goods over into the autumn but most of them will be in a condition to order new stocks at the proper time and seasonable goods of the kind suited to the trade will be in extensive demand

We notice in our latest exchanges from the manufacturing districts at the East that in many classes of dry goods a material decline in prices has taken place and it seems to be so general that our market cannot but be affected by it after awhile if not immediately At this time, however prices are steady in the local market and are most likely to continue so until the fall trade sets in when the course of the Eastern trade will be more manifest on our markets here as far as it concerns the various classes of goods which are brought here in a manufactured state. Harvesting goods are being shipped in quite large quantities by our leading agricultural implement houses and the farmers are evidently making the amplest preparations for saving with celerity the large crops now promised

Grocer es are in fair supply and though trade just now is dull the majority of dealers are satisfied with the season s business and expect a period of fairly active operations during the autumn

The produce department shows a decline in receipts of several important commodities among which are grain and flour potatoes (old crop onions dried fruits dairy products &c Quotations are unchanged from the figures at the close of last week and though some offers are occasionally made to sell wheat for future delivery shippers are cautious about making contracts and the views of producers and buyers are as widely different in regard to the probable price after harvest as they have been of late in offers and demands Oats are coming forward very slowly, and the old crop is evidently about exhausted Wool is about the only commodity which shows a marked activity and with a full number of buyers current rates are readily obtained We notice the fact that many of the granges throughout the State have concluded the best way to obtain full mu. Let sales for their wool is to put in large lots and advertise it for sale to the highest bidder reserving the usual right to reject any bid unless it be deemed high enough We believe the measure is a good one as buyers can afford to visit the localities and inspect before purchasing and it may also lead to a better system of assorting and more regular methods of packing wool than has heretofore been adopted in our State The receipts of wool during the past few days have been large and though no marked change has taken place the feeling in the market is by no means discouraging to holders

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship Ajax which arrived from San Francisco this morning will sail to morrow at 7 o clock in the evening

The time of sailing of the Gussie Telfair for various ports on the northern coast has been postponed until Saturday next

Ayer's Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

Has been widely used during the last twenty five years in the treatment of those distressing diseases, and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible The shakes or chills once broken by it do not return until the disease is contracted again This has made it an accepted remedy and trusted remedy in Fever and Ague of the West and the Gulf States and Fever of the South

Ayers Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system and leaves the patient as well as before the attack It thoroughly expels the disease so that at no Liver Complaints Rheumatism Neuralgia Dysentery or Debility follow the cure Indeed where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from the miasmatic Poison it seems to the cause of them and they disappear Not only is it an effectual cure but if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria it will expel the poison and protect them from attack Travellers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasm has no speedier remedy

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy
